Although the Secretary of the Treas-100,000 to fight pellagra and typhoid in the United States, nevertheless great reduction in typhoid fever is reported by the public health service. Through the investigations of the health service also the cause and cure for pellagra have been determined, putting the service in a better strategic position to cope with the dread disease which has cost so many lives.

which has cost so many lives.

A bulletin regarding the reduction of typhoid fever in rural communities is just issued by the service. Improvement in sanitary conditions one of the steps to reduce typhoid, is also noted. These have followed intensive investigation by the surgeons of the service in rural communities.

sistance of Congress to make furthe The surveys made during the year 1914 had shown that in rural communities less than 1 per cent of the homes had sanitary conditions and that more than 50 per cent of the people were using water from polluted sources. This, according to the public health service, made the rural sanitation question loom large among the matters vitally affecting the welfare of the nation.

Following these studies and as a reult of the interest aroused, the typhoid fever rate, an excellent indicator has in some places frequently been cut to one-quarter of its previous figure. In Berkeley county, W. Va., the cases of typhoid fever were reduced from 249 to 40 in one year. In Orange county, N. C., the rural sanitation campaign resulted in a reduction of the cases from 59 to 17.
